A MESSAGE FROM THE SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA REGIONAL COLLABORATIVE

Dear all,

This year has been a huge challenge for many of us and we hope that you will be able to take some time and reflect on and celebrate all of your accomplishments in the face of adversity. So many educators pushed themselves beyond the point of exhaustion in order to support their students and their wellbeing, and I’m sure that dedication hasn’t gone unnoticed. I sincerely hope that you will all be able to take some time during this winter break to rest and relax.

We hope that you have a restful, restorative, and safe winter break and hope to see you next year!

Warmly, Katie Dixie, Program Coordinator

Ten Strategies for a Successful Transition to Remote Learning: Lessons Learned with a Flipped Course

"Transitioning from in-person to remote learning can present challenges for both the instructional team and the students. Here, we use our course “Biodiversity in the Age of Humans” to describe how we adapted tools and strategies designed for a flipped classroom to a remote learning format."

Pilot Teaching Tool to Promote Academic Integrity

Concerned about academic dishonesty? Berkeley and UCLA professors found that by using the Question-Score Identity Detection (Q-SID) tool to detect dishonesty, students became more likely to have academic integrity on exams.

After they informed their students that they identified the 15% who had been academically dishonest, the following exam only had 2% of students who were found to be dishonest. You might want to tell students you are using this tool to show your students that you want their grade to represent their learning, and encourage them to apply academic integrity.

LEARN MORE ABOUT WHAT WE DO

The California Regional Collaborative is a regional network of 2- and 4-year institutions, working together towards improving overall outcomes in STEM higher education, and in particular for students and faculty from underrepresented groups.

We work with graduate students and other potential “future faculty” from groups that are underrepresented in academia to address the need to increase diversity in our regional colleges to better reflect the diversity of our students. These trainees will support teaching efforts, education research initiatives, and curriculum development needs in collaboration with their 2-year internship site. In addition, regional programming such as webinars, symposiums, conferences, panels, and other events supports both current faculty along with future faculty. This will be coupled with an assessment plan to understand regional needs and assess the impact of our work.

The California Regional Collaborative is part of a network of collaboratives, national organizations, and initiatives participating in the NSF INCLUDES Aspire Alliance
